ENGLISH STYLE GUIDE

This style guide, which is intended mainly for administrative usage within the University of Johannesburg, provides “house style” for the University’s documents. For general spelling and grammar rules, the following resources are recommended:

- The Concise Oxford Dictionary (for academic use)
- The Oxford Dictionary of English
- The Oxford Advanced Learner’s Dictionary (for everyday use)
- Fowler’s Modern English Usage
- Collins COBUILD English Grammar
- Collins English Dictionary [Online]

QUICK REFERENCE TO UJ HOUSE STYLE

These general guidelines are an extract from the English Style Guide.

1. Language – UK English
2. UJ initialism – Please note, that initialisms that refer to tertiary institutions, do not take a definite article, e.g. UJ and not the UJ; all references to UJ as the University take uppercase.
3. Campuses – When referring to the various UJ campuses by name, Campus is spelt with a capital letter; the abbreviations are as indicated; the preposition is on, e.g. on the Soweto Campus:
 - Auckland Park Bunting Road Campus (APB)
 - Auckland Park Kingsway Campus (APK)
 - Doornfontein Campus (DFC)
 - Soweto Campus (SWC)
4. Full stops – NO full stops in:
 - Titles (Prof, Dr, Mr, Mrs, Ms, Miss, Rev, Profs, Revs)
 - Initials of names (IP Beggs, TWR Roux, etc.)
 - Qualifications (BA, BSc, MEd, PhD, D Litt et Phil, etc.)
5. Dates – either write 2017-08-07 or 7 August 2017 (not 07 August or 7th of August).
6. Time – According to the International Standards Organisation's directive ISO 8 601 (2004), which was accepted by South Africa some years ago, time must be represented numerically as follows, according to the 24-hour clock:
 - 09:00 (nine hours)
 - 13:30 (thirteen hours thirty)Not 09:00 a.m. or 13:30 p.m. (the a.m. and p.m. are superfluous). Further note that any time earlier than 10:00 should have a 0- preceding the number, e.g. 02:45, 07:39, 09:00, 09:59.
7. Telephone numbers: 011 489 5555 (without brackets or hyphens).

1. SPELLING RULES

The University of Johannesburg, like the rest of South Africa, follows the United Kingdom's spelling system. Computers should be set to "English (UK)". Instances of such spelling include:

- the use of -ise instead of -ize, e.g. realise;
- the use of -yse instead of -yze, e.g. analyse;
- the use of the double -l and not the singular, e.g. travelling, not traveling; enrol, but enrolling/enrolled; instil, but instilling/instilled;
- the use of -ou and not -o, e.g. behaviour, colour, not color, behaviour;
- the use of -mme in programme. Program is incorrect in relation to a schedule and is only used within the computer domain, e.g. the IT student wrote a new program;
- the use of -re instead of -er, e.g. centre, metre, especially for measurements. However, when referring to an instrument, such as a meter reader, -er is used;
- the use of towards, instead of the American toward.

Please note that in IT programming language, -z- is used instead of -s-, and it is therefore not advised to change it in the body text as it can lead to confusion and/or wrong programming.

2. CAPITAL LETTERS

Please note that this entry (like many others in this guide) is not intended as a full treatment of a difficult topic.

2.1 Proper names and the first letters of sentences

A special note on surnames consisting of separate parts: Where initials or first names are omitted, the first separate section starts with a capital, e.g. Vincent van Gogh but Van Gogh; Dr Lesley le Grange but Dr Le Grange; Ms E du Preez but Ms Du Preez; Prof Nic van der Walt but Prof Van der Walt (if surnames consist of three separate parts, the first and last part should start with a capital letter, unless an initial or first name precedes the surname. Please note: the title is not an initial).

However, it becomes more difficult to decide on upper case (capital letters) or lower case (small letters) when a common word functions in the place of a proper name. Authoritative sources recommend using an initial capital letter for specific reference but a small letter for general reference. It is sometimes difficult to be consistent, but in UJ documentation we should try keep to the guidelines below.

2.1.1 Capitalise the following:

- All short references to the University of Johannesburg as the University (but not the word institution).
- All titles with specific reference (no matter at what organisational level): Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Deputy Vice-Chancellor, Executive Dean, Professor of Geology, Senior Lecturer, Lecturer and Secretary. (This also holds for references to titles of persons outside the University: Mr Black, Corporate Development Director of Xyz, Mr Tshabalala, Special Adviser on Tourism to the Premier of Gauteng; In his capacity as Special Adviser, Mr Tshabalala has promoted the cause of tourism in the province.)
- All names of organisational units and shorter forms referring to them: the Council, the Senate, the Faculty of Science (or the Faculty), the Sports Bureau (or the Bureau), as well as the organisational units of other external bodies (the letter from your Credit Department).
- Names of plans, committees, groups or teams: the Strategic Plan, the Audit and Corporate Governance Committee of Council, the Employment Equity Work Group, the Master Plan Task Team. (Once a committee or work group has been named in a document, and if there are no other committees or work groups with which it can be confused, it can simply be referred to as the Committee, or the Work Group or Group.)

- Words followed by a number indicating a sequence: Chapter 14, Figure 3.1, Form 6C, Grade 12, Post Level 49, Question 7, Regulation No.7, Room 4156, Rule 5.2, Section 2, Table 6.
- Names of fields of study, subjects or disciplines: African Languages, Business Management, Geography, History, Optometry, Zoology.

2.1.2 Try to avoid capitalising words that have a clear general meaning: several faculties, a faculty matter, a departmental issue, other universities, a number of committees and subcommittees of Senate, all the executive deans, a dean, heads of departments.

The following rather long lists of examples may help illustrate “house usage”. Note how the indefinite article (a or an) or plural forms may help to indicate general reference and therefore the preference for lower case.

- The Vice-Chancellor (meaning UJ’s vice-chancellor) attended the function, where he met the Vice-Chancellor of the University of Pretoria. (It would seem discourteous to use capital letters for our Vice-Chancellor, but not for the University of Pretoria’s.)
- *The Ministry of Education invited all principals of higher education institutions. Several vice-chancellors attended the Ministry’s function. (Specific reference to the Ministry, but general reference to vice-chancellors.)*
- The Vice-Chancellor paid a courtesy visit to the Faculty of Humanities. The Faculty’s staff welcomed the opportunity to speak to the Vice-Chancellor in person (specific reference to a particular faculty).
- The Vice-Chancellor paid courtesy visits to several faculties and administrative departments (general reference).
- Our guests, Gino Olivetti and Julia Padresca, are professors from overseas universities (general reference).
- Our guest, Professor Olivetti, from a university abroad... (first a specific reference – a title with a name – and then a general reference).
- Our guest, Professor Olivetti, from the University of Milan... (specific references throughout).
- The Executive Dean of the Faculty of Science...
- The Executive Dean (after an earlier reference to a specific dean, e.g. of the Faculty of Science) officiated at the graduation ceremony.
- All the executive deans were present at the ceremony (general reference, as indicated by the plural forms).
- *An executive dean must chair the meeting (general, for example in academic rules applicable to all faculties. Note that the word chairs functions as a verb here).
*The Dean, as Chair of the meeting... (specific, for example written by a faculty officer in a particular faculty).
- The dean, as chair of the meeting... (general, as in a set of rules, for example).
- *Prof Jones was appointed as Chair of the Audit Committee. The Chair of the Committee referred the matter to the Senate (specific references throughout, since *Chair of the Committee here refers specifically to the Chair of the Audit Committee. The word Senate always takes a capital). The chairs of the audit committees of several higher education institutions attended a conference on (general reference). We must elect a chair for the Audit Committee (Chair with general reference, but Audit Committee with specific reference, which the name Audit Committee makes clear).

- There were several faculty and departmental representatives who submitted reports to the Chair of the Audit Committee. The Chair complimented them on the quality of their work (with general reference to the representatives, but with specific reference to the Chair).
- We must elect a chair for the Committee (meaning the Audit Committee, on the assumption that this Committee was referred to earlier in the text).
- If we establish a new audit committee, we must find a chair for it (general reference).
- If we establish new committees, we must elect chairs for them (general reference).
- The Xyz Committee is a subcommittee of the Senate (specific, general, specific).
- The policy document for academic ethics (general) but the Academic Ethics Policy (specific).

2.1.3 In most of the following cases, news media and other institutions, for example, are likely to use lower case for academic titles and subjects, but in UJ documents we use upper case:

- Ms R Msimang, a Lecturer in Business Economics ... Dr A Maslow, a Senior Lecturer in Psychology ... As a Professor in Industrial Psychology, John Dubois is the ideal person to consult about this problem. (All of these cases are admittedly anomalous, considering that a lecturer should take lower case. However, a lecturer in Business Economics would look peculiar to many – hence the upper case throughout.)
- Ms S Brown, Secretary of the Department of Labour Law ... The Secretary of the Department has already sent out the guides to all students (specific reference to the Department of Labour Law).
- But: All departmental secretaries were invited to the presentation (general reference).
- Prof Markham, whose field is Civil Engineering, was involved in several of the city's civil engineering projects. (Civil Engineering is first mentioned in the specific context of being an academic discipline and afterwards in a general sense.)
- Ms Q Zwane and Mr J Paderewski, students in Jewellery Design and Manufacture, were both winners in the Jewellex competition (specific reference to a field of study).
- From an advertisement for the press: Requirements: • A Master's degree in Banking or Monetary Economics (specific subject names) or any related master's degree with extensive and proven experience in the banking industry (general reference).
- She holds a BA degree in Business Science.
- She holds a BA in Business Science.
- She holds a bachelor's degree.
- She holds an honours degree.
- She holds an Honours degree in English.
- She holds a National Higher Diploma in Business Administration.

- She holds a higher certificate or a national diploma or a national higher diploma or a bachelor's degree or an honours degree or a master's degree or a doctoral degree or a doctorate.
- What kind of support does your Department offer to students? (Here a “courtesy capital”, similar to the one that we would use in external correspondence: Thank you for the letter from your Credit Department.)

2.2 UJ campuses

When referring to the various UJ campuses by name, Campus is spelt in uppercase:

- Auckland Park Bunting Road Campus (APB)
- Auckland Park Kingsway Campus (APK)
- Doornfontein Campus (DFC)
- Soweto Campus (SWC)

Once a campus has been named and it is the only campus referred to, it maintains the uppercase. If more than one campus is referred to, then either the name should be used in full before campus, or the abbreviation should be used.

Incidentally, the preposition to use when referring to the campuses is ‘on’, e.g. The MEC meeting will be held on the Soweto Campus.

On rare occasions, ‘at’ can be used, normally when campus is followed by a location, e.g. We will meet at the campus library.

Please note, in the campus, is never used.

2.3 Designated groups

The designated groups are spelt as follows:

- black person (lower case) (not blacks or Blacks)
- white person (lower case) (not whites or Whites)
- coloured person (lower case) (Coloureds are sometimes used)
- Chinese (upper case)
- Indian (upper case)

2.4 South Africa's nine provinces

According to section 103 of the Constitution of the Republic of South Africa, the official names of the provinces do not contain the word ‘province’. The provinces are:

- Eastern Cape
- Free State
- Gauteng
- KwaZulu-Natal
- Limpopo
- Mpumalanga

- Northern Cape
- North West
- Western Cape

If the word 'province' is used after the name, it takes lower case, e.g. Auckland Park is situated in the Gauteng province.

3. PUNCTUATION

3.1 Ampersand (&)

Avoid using the “and sign” as shorthand for and in formal writing (e.g. ✘ Art, Design & Architecture). Restrict it to the names of companies (e.g. ✔ Lox, Stox & Barrel), tables in which space may be limited or references (e.g. ✔ Blatherskite & Bletherskate, 1990: 81).

3.2 And

In administrative writing, we do not use a comma before and in lists with three items or more: peaches, bananas, pears and grapes. In numbered or bulleted lists, we omit and before the last item:

- peaches
- bananas
- pears
- grapes

3.3 And/or

Use and/or only when it is essential to indicate three possibilities (A or B or both). In a sentence such as All staff and/or students must produce their identity cards when entering the building, the or is clearly unnecessary.

3.4 Brackets and full stops

If bracketed matter forms an integral part of a sentence, place the full stop after the closing bracket. If a full sentence is bracketed, place the full stop inside the closing bracket. For example:

- Use and/or only when it is imperative to indicate three possibilities (A or B or both).
- Note the single t in benefited and benefiting. (American spelling uses a double t.)

3.5 Full stops

- Use full stops at end of sentences and end of paragraphs. Otherwise use them as little as possible.
- Full stops are not used at the end of headings.
- After full stops, only make one space before the start of a new sentence.
- Do not use full stops in abbreviations for qualifications, e.g. BA, BCom, BEd, LLB, BAHons, BComHons, MA, MCom, DPhil, PhD. (Do not use capitals only when using qualification abbreviations in HEADINGS, e.g. BED should remain BEd.)
- No full stops after titles, e.g. Prof, Dr, Mr, Mrs, Ms, Rev
- No full stops (or spaces) after initials, e.g. Prof I Rensburg, JM Coetzee, Mrs A White.

3.6 Hyphenation

Because of variability in usage, all one can do is consult a recent dictionary to determine whether a compound word must be written as life cycle, life-cycle or lifecycle. (The first form is the one that the Concise Oxford Dictionary (COD) (2006) prefers.)

Although it is customary to omit hyphens after prefixes in modern English (e.g. antenatal, antivivisectionism, bioethics, cooperation, counterirritant, hyperphysical, interracial, minicomputer, postgraduate, pseudopodium, subcommittee subheading, superinduce, ultracentrifuge), it is impossible to lay down hard-and-fast rules. Consult a dictionary when in doubt.

A hyphen is sometimes essential to prevent misreading in phrases. There is a difference between 20 odd students (20 students who appear strange) and 20-odd students (approximately 20 students). Be on your guard when coming across compound constructions containing the words high, low, long, short, well, best, little, half, etc. Note the following patterns:

- Long-term objectives, but objectives in the long term
- A well-considered opinion, but an opinion that is well considered.
- First-year students, but students in their first year.
- Half-hour breaks, but phone me every half hour.
- A well-built site, but the site was well built.

Other examples that follow this pattern are where adjectival use is often hyphenated and noun use is not:

- The decision-making process involves decision making.
- The built-in cupboards, but the cupboards are built in.
- Entry-level requirement, but his job is at entry level.
- Problem-solving strategies lead to problem solving.
- A clear-cut decision, but the decision was clear cut.

Another instance that follows this pattern is where adjectival or noun use is often hyphenated (or one word) and verbal use is not:

- Top-up fuel, but they top up the fuel.
- Make a backup, but they back up the files.
- The setup was well done, but they set up the stage well.

An adverb ending in -ly and preceding an adjective or participle is never hyphenated: a superbly written study, a formal, carefully planned programme review.

It can be difficult to decide where to insert a hyphen to indicate a word-break at the end of a line. The tendency these days is to follow American usage and to break according to syllables, e.g. stu-dent, in-flu-ence, let-ter, co-op-er-ation. The safest procedure is to consult a dictionary that indicates word-breaks. (The COD (2006) unfortunately does not, but the Oxford Advanced Learner's Dictionary (OALD) (2005) does.)

There is also something called the “suspensive hyphen” that is used as follows:

- a five- to ten-minute break;
- full- and part-time staff;
- second- and third-year students.

But note the form of sportsmen and women (no hyphen before women).

3.7 Quotations

Note the difference between smart quotation marks (‘...’ or “...”), which are in the shape of the numerals ‘6’ and ‘9’, and straight quotation marks ('...'). Select an option, and use it consistently.

A useful rule of thumb for positioning the full stop in quotations is to place the full stop after the closing quotation marks if the quoted matter is not a full sentence and before the closing quotation marks if the quoted matter is a full sentence. For example:

- Edison (n.d.) defined genius as “one per cent inspiration and ninety-nine per cent perspiration”_
- Newton (n.d.) once wrote, “I do not know what I may appear to the world, but to myself I seem to have been only like a boy playing on the seashore, and diverting myself in now and then finding a smoother pebble or a prettier shell than ordinary, whilst the great ocean of truth lay all undiscovered before me.”_

Other quotation marks (e.g. commas) are placed outside the quotation marks. For example:

- “I’m going to the lecture”, says Mark.

For long quotations (more than 30 words, such as the preceding one), the following layout is better:

Out of the common activities in which groups participate, there develops the means of communication which we call language. The fundamental object is to enable men to apply themselves to a common purpose. Thus the basic notion here is agreement. Likewise, this might well be taken as the starting point of logic. It arises from the fact that in communicating, men eventually come to agree, even if they do no more than agree to differ. When such an impasse was reached our ancestors no doubt settled the matter by trial of strength. Once you dispatch your interlocutor he no longer contradicts you. The alternative sometimes adopted is to pursue the matter by discussion, if it is pursued at all. This is the way of science and philosophy. The reader may judge for himself how far we have progressed in this since prehistoric times (Russell, 1989: 14).

Note the following:

- Quotation marks are omitted.
- The font size of the quoted material is reduced by one to two points (if this is possible).
- Double indentation is used (left and right) to differentiate the quotation from the body of the text.
- Spacing of one line is inserted before and after the quotation.

If the first lines of paragraphs are indented throughout the text as in most published books, the first line of text after the quotation begins flush left. (Also note that a paragraph immediately following a heading, table, figure or list is never indented.)

4. LAYOUT AND TYPOGRAPHY

Typography (i.e. “the style and appearance of printed matter” (COD, 2006)) is an essential device in making a text more accessible to the reader. As a guide to the eye, it becomes a guide to the mind, particularly in learning material.

PCs and word-processing packages have made the old typewriter practice of double spaces after full stops or colons superfluous. Use only single spacing.

4.1 Emphasis

The following may be used for emphasis or distinction in ordinary text:

CAPITALS: AVOID CAPITALS FOR EMPHASIS. CAPITAL LETTERS STRAIN THE EYE IF THEY ARE USED TO EMPHASISE LONG LINES OR CHUNKS OF TEXT. (IN NOTICES, FOR EXAMPLE, rather use upper- and lower-case boldface.) Remember, too, that capitals in an email can be regarded as impolite SHOUTING if overused.

Underlining: Use underlining only if italics are unavailable, or if there is a special reason for doing so.

Italics: Ideal for emphasis in ordinary text. However, never use for large chunks of text because, like capitals, the eyes tire.

Boldface: Preferably to be retained for headings.

Special effects: Never use any of these in ordinary official documentation.

- AVOID using a MIXTURE of methods FOR emphasis, unless you have a good reason for doing so. Emphasis should be functional and not merely decorative.
- Do not underline CAPITALS, boldface or italics without good reason. This amounts to double emphasis. Triple emphasis occurs when bold capitals are underlined in subject headings of letters and memoranda, e.g. SUBJECT: POLICY PROPOSALS. (Most typographers regard this as an outright error.)

4.2 Lists

It is important to maintain consistency in lists, with regard to structure, grammar and punctuation. Avoid mixing full sentences with phrases or single items in the same list.

Note the lack of consistency (“parallelism”) in the following:

The successful applicant will have to:

- manage a large department;
- He/she will be expected to possess outstanding interpersonal skills and get along with people.
- to be able to give guidance to staff in the use of word-processing packages;
- working under pressure.

Improved:

The successful applicant must:

- manage a large department;
- have outstanding interpersonal skills;
- guide staff in word-processing;
- be able to work under pressure.

An example of a list with single items (note the small letters and omission of any punctuation):

A short list consists of:

- item
- item
- item

An example of a list with partial sentences as items (note the small letters and punctuation):

A list may also contain longer items that run on:

- from the introductory part of the sentence;
- from the introductory part of the sentence;
- from the introductory part of the sentence.

(In lists of this type, you may sometimes find that you are compelled to add a full-sentence comment after a particular item. Then use capital letters and full stops for all items as shown below.)

An example of a list with full sentences (note the capital letters and punctuation):

A list with full sentences is presented as follows:

- This is a full sentence. And it is followed by another sentence.*
- This is a full sentence.*
- This is a full sentence.*

Note in particular that the word and is omitted at the end of the penultimate item in all of these examples.

Other guides may recommend other approaches, but for the sake of consistency we keep to the above examples in administrative writing at UJ. Faculties should use their own discretion.

5. LETTER WRITING

The following points are a summary of the simple rules for letter writing given in Dear et al. (1989: 182-3):

- Because a letter has a specific function, it should be written in a way appropriate to that function. (In other words, you would not use an informal/colloquial register when writing to the Vice-Chancellor or the Minister of Education.)
- Start a letter by indicating its main point and purpose. Explanation can be given in the body. End by indicating what you expect to happen next (“I look forward to seeing you next Wednesday”).
- The following paragraph from Dear et al. (1989: 182) is extremely important:

Letters, like all other forms of writing, should avoid jargon, repetition, stilted language and pomposity. Do not use long words where short ones would be just as good. Do not write over-long sentences. Say what you mean, simply and straight-forwardly but courteously. Letter writing has developed a curiously pompous language of its own, used particularly by professional people. “We beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 7th inst.” for example, is an abomination which should be replaced by “Thank you for your letter of 7 June”. “I await the pleasure of a reply” is often unnecessary. If a letter needs a reply, it should be self-evident. But, if you want to end in this way, “I look forward to your reply” or “I look forward to hearing from you” is preferable.

- Check your letter for mistakes. Make sure that you have enclosed any accompanying documents and that the letter goes into the right envelope.

Suppose you have to write a reply to somebody who has declined a job offer at UJ but has praised the way in which his or her application and interview had been handled. Compare the following two replies:

1.	2.
We herewith gratefully acknowledge receipt of your letter dated 14 November 2001.	Thank you for your letter of 14 November 2001.
It affords us great pleasure to take note of your satisfaction with your negotiations with UJ, and we profoundly regret your inability to accept the proffered position.	We appreciate your kind remarks, and we are sorry that you were unable to accept the position at UJ.

Version 1 sounds pompous and stilted, whereas Version 2 has a far friendlier tone.

Keep these points in mind:

- If you do not know the recipient's name, use one of the following forms of address: Dear Sir, Dear Madam, Dear Sir or Madam. Close with Yours faithfully.
- If you know the recipient's name, use Dear Mr Black, Dear Mrs Green, Dear Miss White or Dear Ms White, and close with Yours sincerely.
- Titles in English always take capital letters: Prof, Dr, Mr, Mrs, Miss, Ms, Rev (note the omission of the full stop).
- If a letter addressed to a company or an institution has been marked for somebody's attention (FOR ATTENTION: MR J. JOHNSON), the salutation should be Dear Sir or Madam, not Dear Mr Johnson.
- In English, the number comes before the name of the street: 473 Jenkins Road. Note the plural form of streets in cnr Protea and Disa streets, as well as the fact that the word streets then takes a lowercase -s – whereas street takes a capital letter in Protea Street. (Incidentally, also note that cnr stands for “corner” and c/o for “care of”.)
The words street, avenue and boulevard can be abbreviated, but only when preceded by a street name and number, e.g. 52 Maple St The office is located in Maple St.
- Postal codes must precede place names if typed on the same line:

0001 PRETORIA
2000 JOHANNESBURG
- Never use Re: (“regarding, with regard to”) in a heading to a letter, e.g. Re: Postponement of meeting. A centred heading is sufficient by itself. (Never use “re” for “regarding” in the body of the letter.)
- Try to avoid the hackneyed phrase attached please find. Simply say I am attaching or I enclose. In a covering letter for a fax, it is perhaps best to say something like The document follows on this page – if this should be considered necessary.

Please note:

If you have access to the Internet, go to <http://www.plainenglish.co.uk>. Under the “Free guides” section, you will find “How to write letters in plain English”. This is an excellent, easy guide that you can download.

6. NUMBER STYLE

6.1 Numbers and figures

It is often not possible to maintain consistency in a number style. Note the following, however:

- In ordinary writing (i.e. non-technical texts), spell out numbers from one to nine: Of the seven lecturers who applied for the position, only two were suitable.
- Use numerals for numbers above 10: Of the 15 students who enrolled, 11 passed.
- If there is a clash between related numbers in the same sentence, try to follow the example given by Kahn (ed.) in The Right Word at the Right Time (1985: 395):

Put all the related numbers in figures: We need only 8 to 13 volunteers to keep the three day-care centres operating during the summer months. The number 8 is in figures, since it is paired with 13, but three remains spelt out, since it is not related to the number of volunteers.

- Do not forget that numbers between twenty-one and ninety-nine take hyphens when they are written out.
- Use numerals in the following cases:
 - Chapter 6
 - Question 2.1
 - Table 8
 - Figure 4
 - Post Level 6
 - 9%
 - a ratio of 10:3
 - 3 × 7 m
 - 2 km
 - 3 °C
- Note the spaces and commas in the following: 3 000; 3 500; 2 354 701; R5,87. The so-called Continental System (also used in South Africa) requires that the decimal point be replaced by a comma. However, it is not always possible to do this, since many computer programs require a decimal point for calculations.
Note: To avoid numerals breaking over lines, insert a non-breaking space: Ctrl+Shift+Spacebar.

- Write R5 million to R10 million, not R5 to R10 million or R5 – R10 million or R5 million – R10 million.
- Write telephone numbers in the following way: 011 489 5555 (without brackets or hyphens).

Bear in mind that the above points are guidelines for administrative writing: faculties, for example, may have their own preferences and rules in academic writing (learning guides, conference papers, etc.).

Amounts are sometimes spelled out in very formal financial or legal documents to ensure that no errors or misunderstandings can arise, e.g. R365 512 (three hundred and sixty-five thousand five hundred and twelve rand). Note that the amount in figures comes before the spelled-out form. This approach is not necessary in ordinary documents: writing Three (3) deans were present at the meeting is an insult to any reader.

6.1.1 Dates

When writing dates in numbers in internal correspondence, use the international dating system sequence as determined by the International Standards Organisation directive ISO 8 601 (2004), which was accepted by South Africa some years ago:

year, month, day
(e.g. 2012-03-02: 2 March 2012).

Because confusion can easily arise between month and day in the number style, we must write out dates in full in external correspondence.

We write a date as 2 March 2012, not the 2nd of March 2012, but we say the second of March 2012 when reading it aloud.

In modern style, it is acceptable to omit a comma after the names of days before dates – Saturday 2 March 2012. However, if a comma is inserted after the day, a comma must also follow the year in a sentence such as It was on Saturday, 2 March 2017, that it dawned on me that the following day would be Sunday, 3 March 2017.

6.1.2 Fractions

Use a singular verb with fractions if the noun is singular (e.g. Two thirds of the crop was destroyed by hail) and a plural verb if the noun is plural (e.g. Two thirds of the apples were rotten).

Fractions used to be written with hyphens (see the Grammar of Contemporary English (GCE) (1980) by Quirk et al. and the editions of the COD until the tenth), but the hyphens in the most recent edition of the COD (2006) have been dropped: three quarters, two fifths.

6.1.3 Time

According to the International Standards Organisation's directive ISO 8 601 (2004), which was accepted by South Africa some years ago, time must be represented numerically as follows, according to the 24-hour clock:

- 09:00 (nine hours)
- 13:30 (thirteen hours thirty)

In terms of the 24-hour clock, it is a mistake to write 09:00 a.m. or 13:30 p.m. (the a.m. and p.m. are superfluous). Further note that any time earlier than 10:00 should have a 0- preceding the number, e.g. 02:45, 07:39, 09:00, 09:59. It is recommended that the 24-clock is used.

However, if the 12-hour clock is used, it should be written as follows:

- 9 am/AM (no zero before 9)
- 11:55 am/AM
- 4 pm/PM (no zero before 4)

Note: Select one way of writing time and apply consistently.

6.1.4 Percentages

In administrative documents, we write percentages in figures, e.g. 4%, with no space between the figure and the percentage sign. Also write 9%-16% and not 9-16%.

If it should be necessary to write a percentage out, such as at the beginning of a sentence in non-technical writing, per cent must be written as two words: Four per cent of the company's income is spent on advertising (American usage has percent).

Use a singular verb with percentages when the noun is singular (as in the previous sentence: Four per cent of the company's income ... is ...) and a plural verb when the noun is plural (e.g. Four per cent of the students were absent).

7. FREQUENTLY CONFUSED WORDS

Definitions of words come from or are paraphrased from the Oxford Dictionary of English (2005), the COD (2006) or Collins English Dictionary [Online] (2013).

A
accept, except	These words are often confused. Accept means “to agree to receive something that is offered”, whereas except usually occurs in the sense of “not including”: Except for Peter, everybody accepted the invitation.
access, assess	Access means “a way of approaching or reaching or entering”. Assess means to “estimate the size or quality of”.
accessary, accessory	Accessary is used in criminal law and describes someone who helps another person commit a crime. Accessory describes something that can be added to a machine or to clothing, which has a useful or decorative purpose.
advice, advise	Advice is a noun: I asked the committee for advice. Advise is a verb: The committee advised me to reapply next year. Avoid using the commercialese advise in the sense of “notify, inform”: Please <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> notify or <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> inform (not <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> advise) us of any change in your address. Also avoid the stilted phrase <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Please be advised that... Preferable: <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Please note that...
affect, effect	Affect , a verb, means “cause a change in, has an influence on”: Some plants are easily affected by cold. More often than not, effect occurs as a noun, meaning “result, outcome”: the disastrous effect of acid rain on the environment. In formal English, effect can also be used as a verb meaning “to bring about” or “to accomplish”: The new monetary policy has effected great improvements in the economy. Beware of using affect loosely: <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> The new subsidy formula has affected the university’s finances. Is this for the better or the worse?

a lot, allot	A lot, meaning a large amount or number of people or things, can be used to modify a noun (e.g. I need a lot of time to develop this website). Used as an adverb, it means very much or very often (e.g. I look a lot like my sister). Allot is a verb, which means to give, especially a share of something for a particular purpose (e.g. We were allotted a desk each). all ready, already	All ready means completely ready (e.g. Are you all ready for the test?). Already is an adverb that means before the present time or earlier than the time expected (e.g. Are you buying Christmas cards already? It's only September!).
allude, elude	To allude to something (verb) means to refer to something indirectly. To elude something (verb) means to escape or evade capture in a clever way, or one can use it to express a lack of understanding of something (e.g. He eluded the police for 25 years or The rules of English spelling continually elude me).
alternate, alternative	As an adjective, alternate (pronounced all-tĕr-nĕt) should be used in the following senses: "every other (comes on alternate days); (of things of two kinds) each following and succeeded by one of the other kind (alternate joy and misery)". Alternative means "(of one or more things) available or usable instead of another (an alternative route)".
altogether, all together	All together (adverb) means "together in a single group" (e.g. The waiter asked if we were all together). Altogether (adverb) means "completely" or "in total" (e.g. She wrote less and less often and eventually she stopped altogether). anticipate, expect	Avoid using anticipate as a synonym for expect. If you anticipate something, you notice or expect that it is going to happen and you do something to forestall it or to prepare for it: The Department should have anticipated the increase in enrolments for the programme by appointing more lecturing staff. any one, anyone	Any one means any single person or thing out of a group of people or things (e.g. I can recommend any one of the books on this site). Anyone means any person. It is always written as one word, (e.g. Did anyone see that UFO?).
apart, a part	Apart (adverb) separated by distance or time (e.g. I always feel lonely when we are apart).

	A part (noun) means a piece of something that forms the whole of something (e.g. They made me feel like I was a part of the group). appraise, apprise	Remember that appraise means to “estimate the value or quality of (appraised her skills).” Apprise is a very formal word meaning to “inform” (The Council was apprised of the new policy).
bald, bold	Bald (adjective) is used to describe someone with no hair on their head. Bold (adjective) is used to describe someone who is fearless and courageous.
beside, besides	Beside is a preposition of place that means at the side of or next to (e.g. The house was beside the Jukskei River). Besides (an adverb or preposition) means in addition to or also (e.g. I have no other family besides my parents). borrow, lend	You borrow something from somebody. Somebody lends you something. “May I borrow your book, please?” “Sorry, but I don’t lend my books out.”
bored, boring	Bored (adjective) means “feeling weary and impatient because one is unoccupied or lacks interest in one’s current activity (e.g. She got bored with staring out of the window). The normal construction for bored is bored by or bored with. Boring (adjective) means something or someone is not interesting or exciting (e.g. The meeting was so boring that I fell asleep).
captivate, capture	Captivate (verb) means to attract and hold the interest and attention of (e.g. He was captivated by her smile). Capture (verb) describes the action of taking by force or stratagem, to take control of or to record in a lasting form (e.g. The photograph captured the joy of the graduates).
complement, compliment	Complement means “something that completes or makes perfect” (e.g. The architectural grace of the building was complemented by a well-designed garden). The full complement is the full number of persons required to carry out a task.

	Complementary medicine is “a wide range of treatments for medical conditions and mental problems which people use as an alternative to ordinary medicine. Acupuncture, reflexology and homoeopathy are all forms of complementary medicine (Cambridge International Dictionary of English (CIDE), 1996).” Compliment means “to praise” (e.g. The Dean complimented the students on their designs). Complimentary copies of books or complimentary tickets are given away free. continual, continuous	Broadly, continual means “going on at regular intervals”, and continuously means “going on without a pause or break”. For example, a telephone that rings continually, rings now and then over an extended time. A telephone that rings continuously, rings uninterruptedly. Continuous education is idiomatically correct. council, counsel	A council is “an advisory, deliberative, or administrative body of people”, such as UJ’s Council. The members of a council are called councillors or council members (as we call them at UJ, but avoid the American spelling <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> councilmembers). At UJ we also have counsellors who offer counsel (advice and guidance) to students.
dependant, dependent	A dependant is “a person who relies on another especially for financial support”; e. g. I have no dependants. Yet note: I am dependent on my parents for financial support; I am a dependent child. decent, descent	Decent (adjective) means socially acceptable or good (e.g. Everyone should be entitled to a decent standard of living). Descent (noun) means a movement downwards, or your ancestry (e.g. The plane began its final descent prior to landing. / She found out that she was of French descent).
desperate, disparate	Desperate (adjective) means “a sense of hopelessness that something is very bad or impossible”, or “having a great need for” (e.g. The survivors were desperate for food). Disparate (adjective) means different in every way (e.g. They came from two disparate cultures).
discreet, discrete	Discreet means to be careful or modest, not to cause embarrassment or attract too much attention, especially by keeping something secret (e.g. We made some discreet enquiries).

	Discrete (adjective) means something is distinct and separate or has a clear independent shape or form (e.g. Speech sounds are produced as a continuous sound signal rather than discrete units).
e.g., i.e.	e.g. stands for exempli gratia = for example (e.g. I like fast cars, e.g. Ferrari and Porsche). In the sentence one gives an example of the kinds of cars one likes – Ferraris and Porsches. i.e. stands for id est = that is (in explanation) (e.g. I like fast cars, i.e. any car that can go over 150km/h). In this sentence one gives an explanation of what one considers to be fast.
enquiry, inquiry, query	An enquiry is a request for information (e.g. She enquired about the degrees that technikons offer). An inquiry is an investigation into something (e.g. The Dean ordered an inquiry into the causes of the accident). A query is a questioning of something or an expression of doubt about it (e.g. She queried the validity of the statement).
every day, everyday	Every day means each day without exception (e.g. You have been late for class every day this week). Everyday (adjective) means ordinary, unremarkable (e.g. everyday chores like shopping and housework).
expand, expend	Expand (verb) means to increase in size, number or importance, or to make something increase (e.g. Their business expanded into other hotels). Expend (verb) means to spend or use up something, especially time, effort or money (e.g. She expends a lot of effort to help her students).
heroin, heroine	Heroin (noun) is a powerful illegal drug, obtained from morphine and is extremely addictive. Heroine is a female person who is admired for having done something very brave or having achieved something great. The male equivalent is hero.
I
I, me	People often make mistakes with these two pronouns. I/me is difficult when it is coupled with another pronoun or with a noun. It is then necessary to consider the subject/object in a sentence. “I” is used as the subject of the sentence (e.g. I did the homework and It was I who did the homework), but the object of the sentence is “me” (e.g. He gave me the book).

	The teacher gave the homework to my friend and me. (Not “I”). It becomes easier if one deals with the two people separately: The lecturer gave the homework to my friend + The lecturer gave the homework to me = The lecturer gave the homework to my friend and me. A further way of testing is to replace ‘My friend and I/me’ with we or us (e.g. My friend and I (we) will study; He gave the book to my friend and me (us). incidence, incidents	Because these words sound similar if pronounced fast and carelessly, they are sometimes confused in writing. Incidence means “the fact, manner, or rate, of occurrence or action”: A high incidence of asbestosis was found among workers in the mine. Incidents is the plural form of incident, which means “an event or occurrence”: Several people died in shooting incidents during the year.
later, latter	Later (adverb) is used to express time in the near future, soon or afterwards (e.g. I'll see you later). Latter (adjective) means near or towards the end of something (e.g. I got tired during the latter part of the walk). Latter can also describe the second thing of two things mentioned (e.g. He could either study or go to the movies; he chose the latter). lay, lie / lay down, lie down	Lay (irregular transitive verb – lay / laid / laying) needs a direct object. It means to put something or someone down (e.g. Lay your head on the pillow). Lie (irregular intransitive verb – lie / lay / lain – lying) does not take a direct object. It means to rest in a horizontal position or to be located somewhere (e.g. If you are tired lie here and have a rest OR Durban lies towards the east). licence, license	Licence is a noun (e.g. a driving licence, a dog licence or poetic licence, artistic licence) and license a verb (e.g. to license a vehicle). Note also a licensed restaurant and licensing laws.
moral, morale	Moral (noun or adjective) is used to describe standards of good or bad character and behaviour (e.g. They have a moral obligation to pay the money back). Morale (noun) describes the amount of confidence felt by a person or group of people; especially when in a dangerous or difficult situation (e.g. The morale of the UJ rugby team was high).

personal, personnel	Personal (adjective) means relating to or belonging to someone (e.g. Your personal belongings are the things that belong to you) or designed for or used by one person (e.g. personal computer or stereo). Personnel (noun) means the people who work for an organisation, i.e. the staff. practise, practice	Practise is a verb; practice a noun. James practises law. His practice is in Cape Town. Or, adjectivally: James, who lives in Cape Town, is a practising lawyer. Also note: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ James has had a great deal of practice in law (experience). ➤ The cabaret group has four practices a week (repeated exercises). ➤ The team had a practice match yesterday. ➤ John is a well-practised guitar player. ➤ You must practise care when handling acid. Note: Good management practice (singular).
precede, proceed	Precede means to be or to go before something or someone in time or space (e.g. The chemist should take the time to read the chapters that precede the experiments). Proceed means to continue as planned (e.g. The government has decided not to proceed with the legislation).
quiet, quite	Quiet (adjective) is used to describe something or someone that makes very little noise (e.g. During the examination the classroom was very quiet). Quite (adverb) is used to describe when something is a little or a lot but not completely (e.g. It is quite warm outside).
rise, raise	When used as a verb they both have the same general meaning of "to move upwards", the main difference is that rise is an intransitive verb (it does not take an object), while raise is a transitive verb (it requires an object): Rise (verb – rose/risen) means something rises by itself (e.g. The sun rises in the east; I rise early to walk the dog).

	Raise (verb) means something else is needed to raise something (e.g. Lynne raised her hand). Rise (noun) describes an upward movement (e.g. There was a steep rise in drug-related crimes). Raise (noun) describes an increase in salary (e.g. The staff demanded a 20% raise).
some time, sometime, sometimes	Some time means a period of time (e.g. It took me some time to notice the mistake). Sometime indicates a time in the future or the past which is not known or not stated (e.g. They will meet up sometime). Sometimes means on some occasions but not always or often (e.g. Sometimes she phones too early).
what, which	What is used to ask a question when there are an unknown number or infinite possibilities for an answer (e.g. What is your name?). Which is used when choosing between two or more items, already defined (e.g. Which one of the following is the correct answer?).

8. TERMINOLOGY AND SPELLING WITHIN THE UNIVERSITY

Unless otherwise specified, definitions of words come from, or are paraphrased from, the Oxford Dictionary of English (2005) and the COD (2006).

a, an	Whether to use a or an before a word depends on pronunciation. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ A is used before consonant sounds (speech sounds made with obstruction) such as b, d, t. ➤ An is used before vowel sounds (speech sounds made without obstruction) such as a, e, i. Because we pronounce MA as “em ay”, we say and write an MA degree. Because we pronounce the m in master’s as “mm”, we say and write a master’s degree. The h is silent in honorarium, and therefore we write an honorarium. In words such as university and union, the u is a consonant sound (“yoo”) and we write a university or union. The same goes for the abbreviation “UJ”: a UJ student. In words such as hotel and historic, the h occurs in an unstressed first syllable but it is not entirely silent: we therefore say and write a hotel and a historic event. (In the distant past, an was used in such cases.) act, bill	A bill is a draft that has to be approved before it becomes an act (and thus the law).
Accommodation	Note the spelling.
ad hoc	Written with neither a hyphen nor italics.
adviser	Not <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> advisor . However, note the adjective <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> advisory .
aids	Written with small letters in phrases such as educational aids . The acronym for acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) takes capitals.
affidavit	Note the spelling.
amongst	Amongst is old-fashioned; prefer among.
apparatus	Plural form is apparatus or apparatuses . The Oxford Style Manual (OSM) (2003) prefers the latter and recommends using appliances where possible.

appendix	Plural is appendices for matter added to books or documents.
artefact	Note the spelling.
award	The Higher Education Act (No. 101 of 1997) states: “A public higher education institution may, subject to its institutional statute and this Act, award diplomas and certificates and confer degrees” [emphasis added]. It is a distinction that we could try to adhere to at UJ. However, assessors (examiners) consider awarding a degree to a candidate, which is conferred at a graduation ceremony.
bachelor’s degree	Remember the apostrophe -s, even if degree is left off e.g. She obtained her bachelor’s from UJ . Abbreviated as BA, BEd, BCom, BSc, etc.
bacteria	This is the plural of bacterium and therefore takes the plural form e.g. The bacteria are... basis	Cut this tag from sentences. The course is offered on a part-time basis becomes The course is offered part-time .
biannually, biennially; bimonthly, biweekly	Biannually means “occurring or appearing twice a year”, whereas biennially means “lasting two years” or “recurring or taking place every two years”. Since students can easily be confused by these two words, use “twice a year”, “twice-yearly” or “every six months” for biannually , or “every two years” for biennially in administrative documents. Because bimonthly can be taken to mean either “occurring twice a month” or “occurring every two months”, it is safer to use “twice-monthly, twice a month” or “two-monthly, every two months”.. Biweekly poses the same problem; rather use “twice-weekly, twice a week” or “two-weekly, every two weeks”. Fortnightly is also a useful word for “every two weeks”.
billion	In both the US and the UK, billion now means “a thousand million” (10 ⁹). A trillion means “a million million” (10 ¹²) (OSM: 170).
calendar	Note the spelling.
campus	Plural form is campuses .
cellphone	Use this form instead of longer variants. Written as one word.
chairperson, chair	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Chairman has been replaced by <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> chairperson , or simply <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> chair , to avoid gender bias.
Christian name	Rather use <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> first name or <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> forename to avoid religious implications.

clawback	No hyphen.
commence	Restrict this word to very formal contexts. Most often begin or start is fine.
committee	Note the spelling.
compare/comparison with	Always compare/in comparison <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> with (similarities and differences), e.g. Compared with last year, more learners have visited UJ's mini Open Days ... Compare to = to liken to , e.g. Ostriches are descendants of dinosaurs, and the researchers compare (liken) ostrich movements to those of bipedal dinosaurs. consist of/comprise	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> The committee comprises three sections. Not <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> comprises of. OR The committee consists of three sections. consensus	The South African Labour Glossary (1996) defines the word as “a general agreement on a matter” (a meaning that the COD (2006) underscores: “general agreement”). Be careful not to use the word in the sense of unanimous agreement.
convener	Preferable to convenor . See COD (2006).
Council, the	In internal correspondence it is quite appropriate to write Council without the when referring to the UJ Council – we have “our” Council in mind. In external correspondence, however, it is preferable to use the Council of the University of Johannesburg when it is first mentioned and the Council, the University Council or the UJ Council after that. The same principle applies to Senate (with or without the).
course-goers	Often preferable to participants or attendees .
coursework	One word.
creditors' clerk	Note the position of the apostrophe.
criteria	Criteria is the plural form (the criteria are...). The singular form is criterion .
curriculum	Plural form is curricula .

data	Strictly speaking, the word datum is a singular noun that takes a singular verb (this datum is) and data is a plural noun taking a plural verb (these data are). However, in computing it has become standard to treat data as singular: the data is transferred across the network... This is quite acceptable in administrative documentation at UJ, but we must bear in mind that many technical style guides or professional journals insist on treating data as a plural form (The experimental data were unreliable). So, if you are writing for any academic publication, use the plural form.
day house	Two words, not hyphenated.
decision maker (n), decision making (n) and decision-making (adj.)	When used as a noun, no hyphen, e.g. His decision making was stressful. When used as an adjective, hyphenated, e.g. His decision-making ability was poor.
Department	Note that Department must take of in <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the Department of Chemistry (not <input type="checkbox"/> the Department Chemistry). Although less formal <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> the Chemistry Department is also acceptable.
diagram	Diagram does not take an extra -me , but the m is doubled in diagrammed , diagramming and diagrammatic .
different	Always <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> different from ; never <input type="checkbox"/> different to .
diplomate, diploma candidate	Students who have passed their final diploma examinations and are about to receive their diplomas, are called diploma candidates . After receiving their diplomas at a diploma or graduation ceremony, they become diplomates (not <input type="checkbox"/> diplomats).
disc, disk	A troublesome spelling like program/programme because of the influence of computer language. Disc is the normal spelling for “a flat thin circular object” – the sun disc symbol in Egyptian art – or “a layer of cartilage between vertebrae” – he injured a disc. In computer context the spelling is very often disk – magnetic disk. Although the Oxford English Dictionary Online (2006) notes that “disk is commoner [in computing] as a result of US influence”, it uses the disc spelling in all of its examples: compact disc, floppy disc, hard disc, optical disc, etc. It seems best to disregard the disk spelling and to use <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> disc for all occurrences of the word in whatever context.

doctoral degree, doctorate	Note that either a <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> doctorate or a <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> doctoral degree is used, but not a <input type="checkbox"/> doctorate degree . Abbreviated as DLit et Phil, PhD, DEd, LLD, etc.
“e-” words (like e-commerce, e-business)	Hyphenated; the “E-” is capitalised when necessary, not the letter after the hyphen, i.e. <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> E-commerce but not <input type="checkbox"/> e-Commerce.
economic, economical	Economic has to do with the “wealth and resources of a community”, e.g. the “government’s economic policy”. Economical has to do with “avoiding waste, using resources sparingly”, e.g. An economical recipe uses inexpensive ingredients , or it has to do with “giving good value or return on money spent”.
education, educational	Drop the “-al” affix when the word higher appears in an adjectival phrase: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ higher education institutions; ➤ national higher education plan; ➤ higher education campuses. In other cases, use educational: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ educational institutions; ➤ educational plans; ➤ educational standards.
educator	Rather than educationalist or educationist .
Ellen Kuzwayo (Council, Awards etc.)	Not Khuzwayo.
email	Written as one word and only takes a capital if used at the beginning of a sentence.
England	England should not be used to refer to the United Kingdom (UK) as a whole, since England forms only one part of the UK. The other parts are Scotland, Wales, Northern Ireland, and the Orkney and Shetland Islands. Britain or Great Britain does not include Northern Ireland.
enrol/enrolment	A singular –l, but enrolled and enrolling exam	This “clipped” form should be written out – examination – in formal contexts.
exemption	Exemption is followed by <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> from , not <input type="checkbox"/> for . The student was granted exemption from several subjects .
extension	Often misspelled as <input type="checkbox"/> extention .
extra-curricular	Hyphenated.
extramural	One word.

few, a few	As a statement about number, Few members of staff are able to give first aid has a negative feel about it (the implication is that there should be more of them). A few members of staff can give first aid is a more neutral statement (the implication is that there are enough of them, although there should be more).
First year/ second year/ third year etc.	He is in his first year (or second year/third year, etc.) of studies. (two words) However, when first year takes on an adjectival position, it is hyphenated, e.g. First-year (second-year/third-year) students must report ... ☒ 1 st -year/2 nd -year/3 rd -year students, following the rule of writing out numerals from one to nine.
First Year Experience (FYE)	Universities all over the world use this programme. Some hyphenate it and others not. At UJ this term is not hyphenated.
focus	Note the single s in focuses , focused and focusing . (American spelling prefers a double -s.)
foreign plurals	“Foreign plurals” refer to plural forms of words from languages such as Latin, Greek and French. For instance, must we use memoranda or memorandums ? Such plurals are problematic, as the GCE (1980: 181) points out, suggesting that a dictionary must be consulted for plural formation. “One rule of thumb,” it remarks, “is that foreign plurals often occur in technical usage, whereas the -s plural is the most natural in everyday language; cf.: formulas (general) — formulae (in mathematics), antennas (general and in electronics) — antennae (in biology).” The following forms are recommended (only or preferable form as given by the COD (2006)): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ addenda, memoranda, curricula, symposia, alumni, atria; ➤ but campuses, prospectuses, forums, stadiums, arenas. Although the COD (2006) gives syllabuses as a first choice, we must use syllabi . (It is highly likely that curricula and syllabi will occur together in the same context, and curricula in close proximity to syllabuses would look odd.)
foreword, preface	A foreword to a book is an introduction written by a person other than the author. A preface is an introduction written by the author.
fulfil	Ends on a singular -l , but fulfilled and fulfilling .
full-time, part-time	Note the use of the hyphen.
fund-raising	Hyphenated.

G
gas	The -s is not doubled in the plural gases . The -s also remains single in gasify , gasification and gaseous , but gassy takes a double -s.
government	Use a capital letter for Government when referring to the South African Government.
graduand, graduate	Whereas a graduand is “a person about to receive an academic degree”, a graduate is “a person upon whom an academic degree has been conferred”.
H
handbook, textbook	A handbook is “a short manual or guidebook”, and a textbook is “a book for use in studying, esp[ecially] a standard account of a subject”. In other words, a handbook is less comprehensive than a textbook.
hard copy	Two words.
he/she	It can be difficult to avoid he/him/his as pronouns of common gender (in other words, when referring both to males and to females). The following solutions can be considered: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Use he/she, him/her, etc. (The candidate must prepare himself/herself for a selection test, after which he/she will be interviewed. He/she must remember to bring his/her own drawing instruments along.) ➤ Use you/your/yours (You must prepare yourself for...). ➤ Use plural forms throughout (Candidates must prepare themselves...). ➤ Rewrite the text to avoid pronouns (Preparation for a selection test is necessary, after which an interview will follow...). The first option is awkward in even a short paragraph. The second may be too informal in some contexts. The third and fourth options are the most practical. In formal, older English, pronouns such as someone, somebody, no one, nobody, etc., were considered strictly singular and were usually followed by “male” pronouns: Someone has left his bag behind. However, note the following from the OALD (2005): Someone's [someone has] left their bag behind. The OALD (2005) also defines “charlatan” as follows: A person who claims to have knowledge or skills that they do not really have. The CIDE (1996)

	follows the same approach: charlatan: a person who pretends to have skills or knowledge that they do not have... The OSM (2003: 105) remarks that this usage is common in speech, but still considers it substandard in formal writing.
Holland	Holland is only part of the Netherlands , which must be used for referring to the country.
home page	Two words.
homoeopathy	Earlier editions of the COD marked homeopathy as American English, but the most recent COD (2006) gives this form as first choice and homoeopathy as an alternative spelling. At UJ we should retain the -oeo- spelling, as it is the one used by the Homoeopathic Association of South Africa.
honours degree	Honours with a capital is for the actual name of a degree, e.g. Honours degree in Mathematics. It is used with no capital when referring to the type of degree or students in general, e.g. UJ has a number of honours students. Abbreviated as BAHons, BScHons, BComHons, etc.
human resource/resources	At UJ, we refer to Human Resource Management for the course offered, but our Department is called the Human Resources Division (no apostrophe) or simply Human Resources .
I
institution	Be careful of overusing this word when referring to UJ (This or the institution...). Our intention may be to create a formal impression, but we may be considered pompous if we seem unwilling to call to the UJ by its name, whether in full or abbreviated form. We can also use University (note the capital letter if we mean “our” University) – the form that is officially preferred in policy documents.
Internet	The word is capitalised.
led	Led , the past and past perfect form of the verb “to lead” (e.g. He was <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> led by the nose), is often misspelled as <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> lead because the name of the metal sounds the same.
life cycle	Two words
lifestyle	One word
loan	An NSFAS loan is an amount <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> lent (not <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> loaned) to a student.
lot, lots of	Preferably to be avoided in formal style. Use a great or good deal of , many or much .
maintenance	Often misspelled as <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> maintainance .

master's	Master's with a capital is for the actual name of a degree, e.g. Master's degree in Philosophy . It is used with no capital when referring to the type of degree or students in general, e.g. UJ has too few master's students . It always has an apostrophe.
media	Media is the plural form of medium and must take a plural verb: The media were present at the event . Accordingly, the singular noun medium must agree with the singular verb is : Television is a powerful communication <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> medium (not <input type="checkbox"/> media).
Miss, Ms	The form of address Ms (pronounced miz) is used to refer to a woman irrespective of her marital status: in other words, whether she is married or not. Although we use Ms at UJ, we must remain sensitive to the fact that some women prefer Mrs or Miss .
N
National Plan	Not the National Plan <input type="checkbox"/> on Higher Education but the National Plan <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> for Higher Education (NPHE).
nature	This word is often unnecessary. Problems of a serious nature are simply serious problems .
O
ongoing	One word, no hyphen.
online	One word, no hyphen.
orientated, oriented	Both forms are correct, but oriented is preferable (career-oriented education).
outcomes-based education	Note the -s in outcomes .
Pan-African/ pan-African	Always hyphenated and capital A for African. Pan can be either upper case (Pan-) or lower case (pan-) – however, choose one and be consistent.
population groups	Statistics sometimes require that population (not <input type="checkbox"/> racial) groups be specified. Statistics South Africa (Stats SA) use the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Black ➤ Coloured ➤ Indian ➤ White If it is essential to use black and white in relation to population groups, do not use capital letters.
postdoctoral	One word, not hyphenated.
postgraduate	One word, not hyphenated.
professor	Note the spelling.
Pro Vice-Chancellor	Note the use of only one hyphen.
provinces	South Africa's provinces are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Western Cape ➤ Eastern Cape ➤ Northern Cape

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ KwaZulu-Natal (note the spelling) ➤ Free State ➤ North West ➤ Gauteng ➤ Mpumalanga ➤ Limpopo qualitative	Note the spelling.
quantitative	Note the spelling.
questionnaire	Note the spelling.
R
remuneration	The letters are often transposed and the word is misspelled as ☒ renumeration .
SMS	Plural SMSs, but SMSed, SMSing
staff, personnel	At UJ, we have been using staff in general correspondence because of the more personal touch. We have also used it with a plural pronoun (“they”), a plural possessive (“their”) and a plural verb (e.g. “are”). For example: Staff are satisfied with their new offices, which they find a great improvement on the previous ones. The reason for using plural forms is that careless writers may start off with “staff”/“it”, but invariably slip into using “they”/“their” after a sentence or two. Note the spelling of personnel .
Student Representative Council	Not ☒ Students’ Representative Council .
study guide	Use learning guide .
study leader	Rather use supervisor .
T
tertiary institutions	In the past, this term served as a kind of shorthand for tertiary educational institutions . However, the current term is higher education institutions – abbreviated as HEIs. Note that no apostrophe is used in the plural form of the abbreviation.
thesis	Plural form is theses .
time frame	Two words.
timetable	One word.
U
undergraduate	One word.
University	Always use a capital letter when the word university refers to the University of Johannesburg.
V
Vice-Chancellor	Note the hyphen.
W
whilst	Whilst is old-fashioned; prefer while .
web page	Two words and not capitalised in a sentence.

website	One word and not capitalised in a sentence.
Western	Capitalised when referring to “Western countries” or “Western culture”; not capitalised when referring to the geographical direction.
whistle-blower; whistle-blowing	Hyphenated.
Windows	Only capitalised when referring to the operating system.
World Wide Web	The Web is capitalised in a sentence in the sense of the World Wide Web.

9. ABBREVIATIONS, ACRONYMS AND INITIALISMS

Initialisms and acronyms are special kinds of abbreviations:

- An initialism (or alphabetism) is an abbreviation put together from the first letters of words and these letters are pronounced separately, e.g. “S-A-B-C” or “R-S-A”. Initialisms are written in capitals without spaces or full stops.

Initialisms usually take the definite article, the, if they take it in the full form and if they refer to institutions or organisation, e.g. the SABC, the BBC.

Please note, however, that initialisms that refer to tertiary institutions, do not take a definite article, e.g. UJ and not the UJ; UFS and not the UFS.

- An acronym is also put together from the first letters of words, but these letters are pronounced as a word, e.g. laser (light amplification by stimulated emission of radiation) or Cosatu (Congress of South African Trade Unions). These acronyms can be written using solely capital letters (UNISA) or using a capital letter only for the first letter of the acronym (Unisa); the latter is the preferred usage at UJ.
- The plural forms of initialisms and all-capital acronyms do not take an apostrophe -s, e.g. CDs, NGOs, SMSs (not SMSes, SMS’s, but SMSing and SMSed).

9.1 Full stops and spaces

- Use full stops in ordinary small-letter abbreviations such as e.g., i.e., etc., et al., p. and p.a. as recommended by the OSM (2003).
- Do not use full stops in titles, between initials, or in the names of qualifications, e.g.:
 - Titles:

Singular	Plural
Rev	Revs
Prof	Profs
Dr	Drs
Mr	Messrs (Messieurs – French)
Mrs	Mmes (Mesdames – French)
Ms	Mss
Miss	Misses
 - Initials: Mr TD Stokes; Prof IP Small
 - Qualifications: NDip, NHDip, BTech, MTech, HDipEd, BEd, BAHons, BScHons, BComHons, MA, MSc, MCom, MEd, PhD, but note the spaces in DLitt et Phil, MB ChB. (Also note the use of capitals).

- Do not use full stops if the abbreviation ends on the same letter with which the word ends, e.g. Proprietary Limited ends on -y and -d, so no full stops are used in Pty Ltd; Monday ends on a -y and Mon. does not, so it takes a full stop.
- Do not use full stops or spaces between letters in acronyms and initialisms such as NATO, RSA, UK and USA.
- Abbreviations of metric symbols (weights and measures) are an exception, since they never take full stops: kg, g (gram), km, m (metre). Also note, insert a space between the numeral and the symbol: 36 kg, 50 km. Do not use the plural -s as in kgs or kms.
- If m is used as an abbreviation for million in financial amounts, the space must be omitted: R5m. Because this may be confusing in general correspondence, R5 million should preferably be written out.
- Do not use full stops in headings.

9.2 Campus abbreviations

We use the following abbreviations for the names of UJ's campuses:

- Auckland Park Kingsway Campus – APK
- Auckland Park Bunting Road Campus – APB
- Doornfontein Campus – DFC
- Soweto Campus – SWC

Please restrict campus abbreviations to internal correspondence, because people outside the University may find these “shorthand” forms confusing.

9.3 Full form first, then abbreviation

It is not necessary to write out the full form of a common abbreviation such as USA or UK when it occurs the first time. However, less familiar abbreviations must be preceded by the full form on first appearance in a text: South African Society for Cooperative Education (SASCE). After that, the abbreviation only is sufficient.

Avoid putting the abbreviation first and the full form second (unless you have good reason for doing so):

- SASCE (South African Society for Cooperative Education)*
- South African Society for Cooperative Education (SASCE)*

Try not to drown the reader in “alphabet soup” as in this tongue-in-cheek example by Breier (1994: 7):

If more people receive FECs and GCEs drawn up by the NICD, they could boost GNP. However, the RDP should channel more funds to NGOs. The role of the IDT is less certain...

It is, for example, all too easy to overload a document with HEIs and HE. HEIs as an abbreviation for higher education institutions is very useful, but it is better to write out HE as higher education.

9.4 Plural forms

Plural forms of capital-letter abbreviations (or years, for that matter) must not be written with an “apostrophe -s” (-’s):

- NGO’s, 1990’s;
- NGOs, 1990s.

Only use the –’s to avoid confusion, e.g. Mind your p’s and q’s and cross your t’s and dot your i’s.

9.5 Avoiding tautology

We may easily fall into the trap of adding an unnecessary word to an abbreviation that already contains the word in question:

- ATM machine (ATM = automated teller machine);
- APS score (APS = Admission Point Score)
- CD-ROM disc (CD-ROM = compact disc read-only memory);
- HIV virus (HIV = human immunodeficiency virus);
- ISBN number (ISBN = international standard book number);
- PIN number (PIN = personal identification number).
