

7th August 2019

Book Launch - Transformational development in Southern African communities

Dr Chris Phiri

Dr Phiri is an academic with PhD Social Science Development studies from the University of Fort Hare. He has 28 years of experience at different education levels. He is a development practitioner with 13 years' experience in community development in southern Africa. He has lead strategy development, its implementation, monitoring and Evaluation of programmes in Southern Africa. He has extensive experience designing development models and approaches in education, health, economic development, gender mainstreaming and advocacy.