Application Form: BA Honours in Applied Linguistics 2015

The BA Honours degree programme in Applied Linguistics consists of five modules. Students choose four modules from the list below; the Research Essay module is compulsory. All elective modules are year modules and each module, except the Research Essay, is assessed by means of regular assignments, seminar presentations, practicals (where applicable), an examination in June/July, and a comprehensive portfolio (submitted for examination early in January). The Research Essay module is assessed by means of an essay (some 30 - 40 pages).

Students may enrol for either full-time or part-time study:

- Full-time study: Runs over one year. Special honours bursaries are available.
- Part-time study: Runs over two years. Students select three modules in first year of study and two in second year (one + Research Essay).

Admission Requirements

- A BA programme or equivalent qualification with Linguistics, at least one language or a relevant specialization in Communication at third-year level. Prospective students are required to submit the following documents to the HOD with this application form:
 - A detailed CV
 - A certified copy of ID document in the case of non-UJ applicants
 - Official academic records from relevant university
 - Applicants whose final marks are not yet available will be conditionally accepted based on their June examination marks.
 - A brief motivation why the applicant is interested in enrolling for the honours programme.
 - In the case of international students a SAQA evaluation of degree(s) and a Study Permit are required.
- An average pass rate of at least 65% in a relevant undergraduate major module, e.g. Linguistics and/or a language and/or language-related module. The discretion of the departmental selection committee may apply in special cases.
- Prospective students will be interviewed by the departmental selection committee.
