

Lecturer (PSI) of Contemporary History at the University of Seville and research associate at the Department of History of the University of Johannesburg, South Africa. He has a degree in History, a Doctorate in Political Thought and Analysis with Masters in Political Science and International Relations. He has taught at several Universities in areas such as International Relations (Universidad de los Andes de Venezuela), Political Science (Universidad Pablo de Olavide) and Contemporary History. He is a director member of the Research Center Laboratorio de Ideas y Prácticas Políticas (LIPPO) and of the Research Group Derechos Humanos SEJ 277. He has directed the Seminars "Law and Politics in postcovid Spain" and "Social Movements Yesterday and Today". Among his several publications are: The Sharpeville Massacre 65 years later, published with Dr. Tshepo Moloi; the "Little Apartheid" and the birth of the organizations of the national liberation movement in South Africa (1910-1948); Understanding the political economy of Artificial Intelligence and the Internet of Things: historical origin, functioning and emancipatory potentiality (2023); The crisis of liberal globalization: from the Crash of 2007 to the war in Ukraine (2023); Fascism as destruction of the "rights of man and the citizen" (2022); Populism, International Relations and Human Rights: from Ernesto Laclau to the Far-Right Emergency (2021); Rethinking the Concepts of Subsumption, Surplus Value and Audience Labour in Digital Capitalism (2020); The Concept of Hegemony in International Relations (2019); The Political Philosophy of Toni Negri (2018). He has been a researcher of the ERDF Project: Impact of the Internet of Things on European citizenship, under which he carried out a postdoctoral Research Stay in the summer of 2022 at the CAMRI of the University of Westminster, London. His second stay has been at the University of Johannesburg in South Africa where he has worked on the Apartheid regime and the national liberation movement between the years 1948 and 1990. Her main lines of research are: History of political thought and social movements in contemporary times; History and theory of International Relations; Political economy of digital capitalism and currently she is developing a sub-line on African resistance movements during decolonization.