

University of the Free State and University of Johannesburg joint call for Postdoctoral Research Fellowship Programme 2024 – 2025

Attention Researchers with a passion for Innovation and Excellence

Seize the opportunity to advance your academic career by working under the supervision of researchers from the University of the Free State (UFS) and the University of Johannesburg (UJ). Our joint Postdoctoral Research Fellowship offers a dynamic research environment that leverages the combined strengths of both universities. Apply now and unlock boundless opportunities for your postdoctoral research experience.

The fellowship is awarded for 24 months, starting from 1 May 2024. It comprises two phases as follows:

PHASE 1: 12 months of research at the University of the Free State or University of Johannesburg

PHASE 2: 12 months of research at the University of Johannesburg or University of the Free State

Postdoctoral Research Fellowships will be awarded on a competitive basis, considering the candidate's academic achievements, potential as an independent researcher, and the extent to which they meet the requirements of the call. Candidates should approach suitable hosts at each institution in their field of research expertise before applying.

The Postdoctoral Research Fellows will conduct their research projects under the joint supervision of the University of the Free State and the University of Johannesburg. The research intended to be done should be aligned with the research areas of hosts at both universities, UFS and UJ.
