How to apply

Our application form is online, please select Next at the bottom of this page.

No hardcopy application forms will be available. Please note that this application form cannot be downloaded; therefore, you are advised to reserve sufficient time to complete the application online. However, you can start, stop, save and continue your application throughout the application process.

What you need to apply

- You must have a working email address
- You must have a working cell phone number
- You must have a student number if you are applying for your second or higher year of study. This is only applicable to our returning students.
- You must have proof of the exact amount of your parents' or guardians' monthly income. Bank statements are not accepted as proof of income.
 - Please note: You must submit the proof of income of both parents. If one parent is deceased, then the death certificate must be submitted. If you only live with one parent, then an affidavit from your parent should be submitted stating that your parent is a single parent. If your parent is unemployed, then an affidavit from your parent must be submitted stating that the parent is unemployed.

What does the bursary cover?

The HCI Foundation bursary is a partial bursary that covers 75% of a student's tuition fees up to R40 000 per annum. We do not give allowances for living expenses, books, residence, meals or transport (except in special circumstances).

*Please note that we do not pay for repeat years of study or repeat modules.

How and when do we pay?

Payments happen around July of each year. We pay directly into the student's fee account at institutions of study. We do not pay students directly.

What are the conditions of our bursary?

The HCI Foundation bursary is free, and we do not require bursary recipients to repay their bursaries EXCEPT in special circumstances where;

- The student failed their studies due to proven lack of commitment and did not inform the Foundation in advance about their circumstances.

- The student is intentionally unwilling to participate in the bursary programme activities during and after they have completed their studies.
- The student provided false/inaccurate information to unduly receive the bursary.

The Foundation do expect bursary recipients to give back by engaging with community projects, reporting back to the HCI Foundation through tutoring and mentoring programmes and volunteering in their own communities.

In addition, bursary recipients are required to attend workshops and complete surveys during their academic year and after completing their studies.

Can the student apply if he/she has got a NSFAS loan, other loans or another bursary?

You may still be eligible for an HCI Foundation bursary even if you are recipient of a loan or a partial bursary from elsewhere.

However, we will withdraw our bursary if a student receives a full cost bursary or a significantly large partial bursary from another donor. The withdrawn bursary will be allocated to another deserving student.

Students with large partial bursaries and those with full-cost bursaries are required to inform the HCI Foundation of their status or to decline our bursary by sending an email to bp@hcfoundation.co.za

Does the Foundation cover master's or PhD studies?

No. The Foundation does not fund Master's or PhD studies.

The Foundation funding is limited at Honours and Postgraduate Diploma level of studies.

Does the Foundation assist with internships or employment?

The foundation runs a Graduate Development Programme that seeks to close the work experience gap that is required by potential employers. Only the HCI Foundation bursary recipients qualify to participate in this programme by sending their cv and motivational letter to alumni@hcfoundation.co.za for consideration when there are opportunities available. It must be noted that this programme does not guarantee graduates employment or internship opportunities. However, opportunities are shared with graduates once they become available. Graduates are encouraged to stay in touch with the Foundation and inform us of their employment or studies progress regularly.
