CANDIDATE APPLICATION AND SELECTION PROCESS FOR PHDs

APPLICATION

All candidates must apply online. Details of the electronic application can be found at "Admission+Aid > Postgraduate" on the UJ website (www.uj.ac.za). International candidates must comply with additional requirements set out under "Admission+Aid > International Students".

PROVISIONAL SELECTION

A continuous (paper-based) screening process of each electronic application is done in terms of minimum requirements for entry into the PhD programme and performance in the undergraduate and postgraduate programmes. Qualifying candidates are provisionally accepted and forwarded an initial research proposal template that needs to be completed before the conditional selection process.

CONDITIONAL/FINAL SELECTION PROCESS

As there are only a limited number of places available for candidates in the PhD programmes, a stringent selection process will take place after applications have closed. This includes the following:

- A screening process of each applicant's initial research proposal.
- Selected applicants, based on the initial research proposal, will be invited to an interactive panel interview (November of the year of application).
- Conditional acceptance onto a programme is based on the outcome of the interview (final acceptance onto a programme after the panel interview is only in exceptional cases). We have limited supervision capacity in the Department of Accountancy and therefore only conditionally accept a few candidates.
- Conditionally accepted candidates will work with an allocated supervisor to complete a final proposal during a 6 to 12 month pre-registration period.
- Please note, since acceptance is conditional until the final proposal has been accepted, international candidates should convey this message to the authorities when applying for a study permit, i.e. if you are unsuccessful during the proposal stage, you have to return to your country.
