About the Workshop

- This workshop will be focused on details around finalising ones research and report and looking at issues that one may face when they finalise their Postgraduate studies. I will also be discussing things one should consider before their final submission.
- This workshop will also provide some essential writing information around research structure and ways to overcome some generic writing difficulties while providing ways to maximise on your time and efforts amidst a looming deadline.

About the facilitator

Tony Shabangu is a coordinator at the Research Capacity Development unit at the Postgraduate School located at the University of Johannesburg. As a coordinator Tony is responsible for the CM0464 Blackboard community that offers services, workshops and dissemination and communication opportunities to our Honours, Master's Coursework, Postgraduate Diploma and Final Year Undergraduate students. Previously, Tony was a postdoctoral research fellow at the Centre for Leadership Ethics in Africa, based at the University of Fort Hare. He joined the University of Johannesburg in 2008 and recently received his Ph.D. at the Department of Philosophy in 2022. His main area of specialization is African Ethics, primarily Ubuntu. Prior to that Tony was the on-site Research Writing Consultant at UJ's Research Capacity Development unit located at the Postgraduate School. Tony has lectured 3rd Year Ethics (UKZN), Optometry for Ethics (fourth-year level), Social Work Ethics (Honours) and taught Ethics for Engineering, Ethics for Accounting and English for Law. Tony has presented work in various conferences, with the most recent being the Conference on Agency and Violence hosted by the University of Pretoria and the Philosophy Society of Southern Africa conference in 2023 (at UJ). Tony has also hosted and MC'd a number of events with the most recent being the Visualise Your Thesis (VYT) and the Three Minute Thesis (3MT) Competitions, hosted by the Research Capacity Development unit at the University of Johannesburg.
